From: American Sentinel University [services@americansentinel.edu]
Sent: Wednesday, May 11, 2011 4:18 PM
To: tiina.hyvonen@comcast.net
Subject: TEST HTML :: The Sentinel: American Sentinel will change its logo and look in April

You are receiving this email as a test mailing. Some contents of this email may not display and/or behave properly. Learn more...

If you are unable to see the message below, click here to view.

In This Issue

>> New to American Sentinel? Visit our New Student Resource Center
>> Registration is now open for courses beginning in May and June
>> Student academic advisors now called student success advisors
>> American Sentinel will change its logo and look in April
>> Students, join the conversation online!
>> American Sentinel University student success story
>> Join Dean Catherine Garner in the next live health care chat, Tues., April 13, 8 p.m. EDT.
>> Career corner

New to American Sentinel? Visit our New Student Resource Center

The student success team is excited to announce the "New Student Resource Center," a new platform designed to facilitate a successful transition to American Sentinel University. The site provides new students with information about the university, answers to common questions, and tips for success at American Sentinel.

Students can visit the home page of the New Student Resource Center to access a "Getting Started Checklist," writing resources, academic success tips, answers to frequently asked questions and links to our online communities. Current students are encouraged to check out the resource center as well, as information provided is beneficial to all American Sentinel students.

Also, for those new to American Sentinel, check out our on-demand video guided tour to help you navigate the student website.

Registration is now open for courses beginning in May and June

The following terms are currently open for registration. Check the course catalog to find out what courses you can take in the next two terms to maintain your momentum or complete your degree.
Student academic advisors now called student success advisors

Successfully navigating through your degree program may require a little support, encouragement and problem solving. Because American Sentinel is here to provide first-class support to help new and current students when they need assistance, student academic advisors have been renamed student success advisors. This new title reiterates your advisor’s focus on your success.

Each new student is assigned a new student success advisor to guide him or her through the first two courses and provide answers concerning orientation, registration, ordering books, course selection, etc. As a student progresses through his or her studies, a dedicated program-specific student success advisor offers individual encouragement and direction all the way to graduation. The student success team is available 7 a.m. - 6 p.m. MDT (M-F) and 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. MDT on Saturday. Feel free to call or email if you ever need anything.

American Sentinel will change its logo and look in April

In the five years since American Sentinel was formed, we have grown in size and quality, thanks to our high-caliber degree programs, esteemed faculty, talented staff - and most importantly, our amazing students and alumni. It’s natural, then, that we aspire to further establish ourselves as a recognized leader in online higher learning. To do this, it is essential that we put forth a strong, clear message and image that sets American Sentinel apart from the competition.

That’s why we are rebranding the university this spring. During the last week of April, you will start to see our new look - including a new logo, new website, all new colors and fonts. We hope you’ll agree that our new look gives us a fresh, updated image that still reflects the core personality traits you’ve come to know and trust: that we’re credible and professional, warm and inspiring, contemporary and forward-thinking.

Rest assured, nothing about the school is changing other than our brand look. Your courses and degree program, faculty and advisors - they’re all staying exactly the same. The school's ownership, executive management, mission and accreditations - all the same. All we’re doing is updating our image to match the pride we feel about American Sentinel and its excellent track record for positioning students for success. We know you’ll be proud, too.

More information is coming your way soon!

Students, join the conversation online!

Looking for career tips, industry updates and networking opportunities? Join the conversation by joining one of American Sentinel’s LinkedIn groups:

- American Sentinel Official LinkedIn Group
- American Sentinel Military LinkedIn Group
- American Sentinel Health Care LinkedIn Group
News you can use

The demand for nurses is at an all-time high, and now health care executives across the country are seeking candidates with military experience. Find out why in our new article, Recruiters seek former military to fill health care vacancies.

American Sentinel University student success story

Find out how one American Sentinel University GIS graduate (Geographic Information Systems) has become an integral part of the multi-trillion dollar oil industry.

Join Dean Catherine Garner in the next live health care chat, Tues., April 13, 8 p.m. EDT.

Facilitating Change: How a BSN or MSN can empower you to become a leader.

Did you know that the most successful process improvement plans come not from top management, but from engaged employees? Even though it's hard, nurses must speak up and advance change. But how should you approach your manager with ideas? How can you step up as a leader and facilitator of change in your organization?

Join Dr. Catherine Garner for a live chat about this topic on NurseTogether.com on Tues., April 12 at 8 p.m. EDT.

The chat series is available on NurseTogether.com only, so join today. There is no cost or obligation to become a member or participate in our chats.

Career Corner

Although the economy is making a steady recovery, many employers are still cautious about raising their permanent headcount and labor costs. So whether you're looking for a new job in your current industry or looking to change careers entirely, strategic preparation could give you a leg up on the competition. Click to learn more about creating your own effective job search strategy.

If you are no longer a student at American Sentinel and wish to stop receiving student news and announcements click here to UNSUBSCRIBE.