American Sentinel University Introduces...

Dr. Devon Cancilla joins American Sentinel University as dean, business and information technology. Previous to joining the American Sentinel team, Dr. Cancilla held senior education positions at Western Washington University and a post-doctoral position at the University of Western Ontario. Dr. Cancilla served most recently as executive director and campus dean at New York Institute of Technology.

Steve Mahoney joins American Sentinel as vice president, education and information technology. Steve comes to us with 20+ years in the IT field, including senior technology management at EDMC and eCollege. Steve will serve as the strategic leader for information technology for the university.

Dr. Dave Marshall joins the university as vice president, academic affairs. His extensive background in education includes faculty appointment and senior education administration positions at Shaw University, North Carolina Central University, the College of Charleston and Temple University.

Jason Rankin is the newest student success advisor. Jason has worked for American Sentinel for almost a year supporting students and staff as an administrative assistant and was recently promoted. Jason will advise RN to BSN students to support and encourage them through their academic journey. Kelsey Gryniewicz will continue to support our MSN and DNP students.

WEBINAR:

Tues., July 12, 1 p.m. EDT
American Sentinel University at ESRI International User Conference

American Sentinel University will be at the ESRI International User Conference July 11 – 15 in San Diego, CA. Can’t make it to California? Then check out the best places to look for a job in geographic information systems!

Health Care News

Live Chat: Medical Practices Need Nurses

As medical practices merge and are acquired by large health systems, more job opportunities are available for nurses than ever before.

Join Dr. Catherine Garner, dean of health sciences and nursing at American Sentinel University, and Alice Masiarelli, RN, MSN, FACHE, CPHQ, medical practice administrator and DNP student at American Sentinel, on Tues., July 12 at 1 p.m. EDT to learn more about exciting opportunities in this growing area.

Business News

Is Your Resume Up to Par?

When you apply for a job, you may be the most qualified person in the world, but if your resume is not well-written, you are likely to be lost in the sea of applicants. Here are seven tips to help separate yourself from the pack.

Military News

U.S. Army Soldier Sees Bright GIS Future

U.S. Army Staff Sgt. Gregg Kimbell believes geographic information systems are the future. Kimbell, 29, chose to pursue an online GIS degree because the technology can be found in everyday life and sees great career potential. Keep reading.

Want a study buddy?

Refer A Friend

Registration

Registration is open for courses beginning in July, August, and September!

Registration is open for all summer classes. Please review the academic calendar to select courses and get closer towards completing your degree.

Follow Us!

Facebook
LinkedIn
Twitter

Is Social Media Helping or Hindering Your Future?

Facebook now boasts over 500 million members. Twitter comes in second with roughly 200 million, and LinkedIn follows with about 100 million. Can this social media surge threaten your advancement in a business career? A growing number of companies are answering with a resounding yes. Read More.